PROFILE

Sarah is the youngest from a family of five children from her mother, but the eighth child of eleven children from her father. Gloria's father abandoned her mother and children to marry two other women. This has traumatized Sarah as she feels abandoned by her father. Sarah struggles to watch her mother take care of her and it breaks her heart. Sarah's older siblings have moved to fend lives for themselves leaving Sarah with her mother. Sarah's mother has constantly moved them from place to place because of finances. Sarah has briefly found shelter at school for this reason since the places her mother finds is not safe for her to remain with her.

Nonetheless, Sarah is hopeful that she can continue at school and pursue her dream of becoming a lawyer. When asked why she desires to become a lawyer, she answers and in her own words: "every woman must be respected and if a husband leaves his wife, he should continue being responsible for her and her children". Sarah is active both in class and out of class activities as she is a leader and member in several clubs.
