

Kyle Cook is a long-time resident of Johnstown, with deep community roots and a family legacy tied to the town's earliest days. He is a proud husband and father, driven by a heart of service strengthened through nine years in the U.S. Army.

Kyle is an active member of the American Legion and the Johnstown Historical Society, supporting local heritage and preservation. He serves on the Planning & Zoning Commission, contributing to long-term planning and thoughtful community development.

Professionally, Kyle brings 15 years of experience partnering with businesses on growth strategy and building operational systems. He is also the author of independently published children's literature, blending storytelling and design to inspire young readers.