

Rug Sizing Guide

Dining Room

Make sure your rug is large enough so each chair is fully on the rug and has at least 2 feet behind it for when it's pulled out.

Living Room

You can either get a rug that's large enough for all pieces to fully fit on it, or make sure that at least the front legs of each piece are on the rug. The goal is to make everything feel connected and cohesive.

Bedroom

Ideally, the rug would extend 2-3 feet, from the sides of the bed so when you get out of bed, your feet touch it. It should stay at least 12" from the walls and have that same space between the rug and nightstands.

Entryway

The rug should be the same size, or larger than the width of your door(s). You can achieve this look by using an indoor/outdoor rug for more durability.
