Vail Vendor Guide

Welcome

We are Gabi and Ramon and we can't wait to work with you on your big day!

As Vail locals we highly recommend using other vendors that are local to the area. A frequent problem we see couples encounter is that they hire vendors from Denver, which is 2 hours away from Vail. While the vendors themselves are not problematic things like traffic issues, extra fees(hotel/gas), Vail pass closing during bad weather, not knowing the venue, and getting lost in the area are things we see pop up time and time again.

If you chose vendors who are local to Vail you are going to have someone who knows the area, who likely has already learned the in's and out's of the local venues, who will not have a problem with the Vail pass, and who will able to fully support you (and your timeline) on the big day!

To support you with your search, we compiled a list of vendors we have worked alongside and have come to love!

We encourage you to take a peek at their websites, and use this guide as a jumping off point for the rest of your planning. We can't wait to see who you chose!

Becca has been planning weddings and events since her own wedding in 2012! Becca is also a wedding coordinator for the Vail and Beaver Creek Chapel. According to Becca herself "my favorite moment as a wedding planner is sending the Bride down the aisle, fixing her veil so it flows beautifully, fanning out the train of her dress into place, and seeing the groom's face as he sees his beautiful bride. I am also a huge fan of couples writing their own vows and reciting them during the ceremony. There is nothing more authentic and heartfelt than the words shared during such a memorable moment in front of the people who mean the most to you".
