EDITOR'S NOTE

Am I the only one that often feels like once I've got it all together, everything starts falling apart? I swear it's always something, but that surely doesn't mean that we have to look like it! Years ago, I was watching Sharon Osborne on TV when she confessed that she and her husband, Ozzie Osborne, had been bankrupt multiple times which instilled her belief in buying quality over quantity. This way, when times got rough, nobody would suspect a thing by her physical appearance. That moment is when I realized it's important to invest in the best classic, well fitting basic silhouettes that you can afford. These are items you wear all the time such as a black pencil skirt, navy blue slacks, or a dark denim jean.

I know several of you reading this may be thinking "this is no fun," but trust me, there are plenty of awesome and expressive trends you simply must know about this season, period. The FW18 POLISHED trend report will ensure you are equipped with all the knowledge necessary to update your wardrobe. I will admit, this retail season while walking the floors observing the transition, I saw something a little different, something I have not seen in years! Floors are bursting with an abundance of traditional suiting. It seems as if labels finally got the memo... Business Casual does not mean jeans and tennis shoes for all. I encourage you to use this this opportunity to get your favorite quality basics in line, now is the time; you won't regret it!
