

THE GRAND ENTRANCE

As we plan for your wedding, one of the most fun and creative reception elements is 'The Grand Entrance.' It is the first event of your reception, and it sends a message to guests which says, 'we're gonna have some fun tonight!'

When we ask most couples what they envision for the 'G.E.,' they often want to choose music that their wedding party will enter and dance to as we introduce them to your guests. That always works out nicely and creates some fun energy, but it tends to lack a lasting memory that your guests take with them...

With that being said, we suggest you theme your 'G.E.' and make it memorable, and even epic! Here are a few ideas to inspire you.

1. We had a couple who was really into basketball, so we crafted a custom introduction that had us introducing their wedding party just like a starting lineup, heights, stats and sports anthem songs. This culminated with the wedding party circled up on the dancefloor, huddled up, bouncing side-to-side and when the newlyweds made it out to join them, the wedding party ripped off their tearaway sweats to reveal their formal attire.
2. We had a couple who decided to write Yelp reviews for each person in their wedding party. They gave them up to 5* and wrote a Yelp-style review for each, in a very comical way.
3. Our latest favorite is themed around our couples who met online(Tinder as an example) and are extending that theme to their wedding party by writing current or archived Tinder profiles for each one!

4. Our most revered 'G.E.' is wrapped around those hilarious Dos Equis television commercials for The Most Interesting Man In The World. That campaign has some of the most sarcastic, creative one-liners that help 'Roast' your wedding party! We welcome your guests, and let them know that YOU think that your wedding party is The Most Interesting Wedding Party In The World! We give you all the creative credit, and let them know that you wrote all this great stuff about them....and that they have no idea about any of this! You'll get soooo many compliments on this 'G.E!' So, below is our list of Interesting Facts that you can choose from, or to use as inspiration to create your own.
