

SPEAKER, COACH, AUTHOR

Are you looking to advance into senior leadership, but keep getting passed over for promotion as “not ready?”

I help women scale into high-impact and healthy executives.

Through my nationwide research, and as an executive at Fortune 15 companies, I have found that ability, intelligence, and qualifications are not what is holding back women from the C-suite; it is societally driven beliefs that show up in our relationships at work.

Have you been told your areas of improvement include any of the following:

- Improved communication
- Executive presence with Senior Leadership
- Delegating to and empowering your team
- Effective relationships with partner teams
- Being more strategic and less tactical

By practicing Relational Courage, we can transform our relationships at work with our boss, our peers, and our team. This allows us to advance our careers while moving from self-conscious to self-confident.
