Disclaimer: Hamilton Farm Doodles practices the Puppy Culture methods for your puppy from birth till you take them home. We do not benefit in any way by promoting Puppy Culture. We simply use methods as laid out in their breeding guide. We also understand that there are other training programs that have helpful practices. We recommend any methods that promote loving, caring for, and teaching your puppy through encouraging consistent positive practices. We believe a well trained puppy will turn into an enjoyable member of the family and an untrained puppy can become a burden to your family. We never promote any methods that incorporate abuse or negative correction.

Things we have done to help your puppy get a good start:

1. Handled them often by inspecting their ears, paws, mouths; so as to make future health care easier
2. Introduced different sounds and items; so as to reduce the fear of new things
3. Added cinnamon to the potty area; so as to give you a method to show the puppy where you would like them to go potty during continued training
4. Only pet after they sit; so as to teach manding
5. Introduced the first steps of crate training
 - a. When placed in the crate, we gave a treat, played classical music, and covered the crate with a blanket. This helps them relax and enjoy crate time. Always take your puppy potty before and after crate time.
