Professional Learning Catalog 2026-2027

The Empowered Educator Difference

Empowered Educator strengthens the human infrastructure of schools including patterns of regulation, communication, and response that determine whether initiatives hold under pressure.

What Changes

- ✓ Consistent adult responses across classrooms
- ✓ Clearer communication under pressure
- ✓ Reduced variability in expectations
- ✓ Stronger follow-through after professional learning

Why This Approach Works

Most professional development focuses on what educators know. Empowered Educator focuses on how schools function.

Our programs help staff recognize and shift the patterns that shape how they interpret stress, respond to behavior, and communicate with one another. When those patterns change, initiatives hold and collaboration becomes easier.

|| Empowered Educator is what every educator needs right now. The courses engage participants in a variety of experiences and techniques that require them to slow down, think deeply, and reset their thinking. Staff have told me that they feel reinvigorated, more balanced, and engaged in education since taking part in Empowered Educator programs.

THRIVE 1 & 2

Supports educators in sustaining required classroom consistency

The Challenge: The demands of teaching are ongoing, and over time that pressure can erode presence, patience, and consistency in the classroom. Chronic stress quietly affects instruction, relationships, and engagement long before a teacher considers leaving the profession.

The Impact on Your School Will Be

- Staff moving from understanding to practical application.
- Teams reflecting together on how new ideas translate into daily practice.
- Schools seeing more consistent follow-through after professional learning.

This Matters Most When

- Staff are showing signs of burnout, disengagement, or emotional fatigue.
- Leaders want to strengthen sustainability without adding new initiatives.
- Schools are focused on retention, climate, and long-term educator support.

Redesign Your Mind 1 & 2

Improves adult responses and professional judgment

The Challenge: Even experienced educators can fall into automatic patterns of thinking and reacting under pressure. These patterns influence interpretation of situations, communication with colleagues and families, and responses in classrooms, often leading to inconsistency, conflict, and missed opportunities.

The Impact on Your School Will Be

- Adults responding more intentionally in challenging or high-pressure situations.
- Greater consistency in how educators interpret and respond to everyday challenges.
- Stronger alignment across teams that supports classroom climate and collaboration.

This Matters Most When

- Leaders want stronger alignment across staff responses and communication.
- Teams are navigating conflict, change, or inconsistent expectations.
- Schools want to deepen professional practice beyond surface-level strategies.

Keynotes & Workshops

Creates immediate alignment across staff

The Challenge: Teams are working hard, but responses to stress, behavior, and expectations vary widely across classrooms and roles, making it difficult for leaders to maintain clarity and momentum.

The Impact on Your School Will Be

- Staff gaining a clearer understanding of how stress and pressure shape behavior.
- Teachers responding more effectively during critical classroom moments.
- Teams aligning around a shared approach that strengthens climate and learning.

This Matters Most When

- Teams need clarity, renewed energy, and a shared direction.
- Leaders want to introduce a common framework for responding to everyday challenges.
- Schools want to strengthen alignment without adding new initiatives.

Teaching From Within

Provides early support that prevents burnout and attrition

The Challenge: New educators are committed to their students but are often unprepared for the emotional demands of the classroom. Early stress shapes habits around communication and decision-making. Without support, these patterns can lead to burnout, disengagement, and early attrition.

The Impact on Your School Will Be

- Early-career educators developing stronger awareness and steadier classroom responses.
- New teachers navigating challenges with greater confidence and consistency.
- Schools strengthening retention by supporting educators before burnout takes hold.

This Matters Most When

- New teachers are feeling overwhelmed by the realities of classroom demands.
- Leaders want to strengthen early-career support and reduce attrition.
- Schools are investing in stronger mentoring experiences.

Empowered Leadership Library

Equips leaders to lead with clarity, calm, and conviction

The Challenge: Leadership demands keep expanding while the support systems haven't kept pace. Most leaders are navigating more complexity than ever before. When leaders are running on empty, decision-making suffers, culture erodes, and everyone in the building feels it.

The Impact on Your School Will Be

- Leaders who respond to pressure with clarity and intention, not reactivity.
- A stronger school culture shaped by leaders who are grounded and self-aware.
- Staff and students who feel the steadiness of leadership, even in challenging seasons.

This Matters Most When

- High-pressure situations are happening regularly.
- Staff reactions are escalating situations instead of stabilizing them.
- You want leadership responses to set a clearer tone across the building.

Listen Up! Strategies for Raising Empowered Kids

Establishes shared language across parents and educators

The Challenge: Students receive mixed messages when parents and educators respond differently to behavior. This misalignment often leads to frustration and conflict between families and school staff, making collaboration harder when students need it most.

The Impact on Your School Will Be

- Parents and educators using shared language when responding to student behavior.
- Students receiving clearer, more consistent messages across home and school.
- Stronger relationships built on trust, clarity, and aligned expectations.

This Matters Most When

- Communication between home and school feels strained or inconsistent.
- Parents and educators respond to behavior in very different ways.
- Leaders want to strengthen family partnerships and reduce mixed messages for students.
