Cookie policy

Cookies are small text files that are automatically stored on your computer while you browse a website. They give information on how the site is used and help website owners in developing their site. Cookies are harmless to your computer or files and they may even be necessary for a service to function properly. If you accept the use of cookies on your browser, you will give consent for using cookies on our website except in the case of subscribing our newsletter when an unambiguous consent for accepting cookies is required. You can decline storing of cookies on your browser or limit their use, or you can delete the cookies from the settings of your browser. Please, notice that cookies may be necessary for some features of the services to function properly.

There may be services on our website that use cookies, like:

- Google Analytics and Google Search Console services that use cookies for tracking visitors and search engine optimization purposes. This data is used in anonymous and statistical analysis of our website and to help in marketing.

- Paperform, the provider of the contact form on our website, uses cookies to provide the contact form service and in tracking the use of the contact form anonymously and statistically. You can review their cookie policy here: https://paperform.co/privacy/.

- MailChimp uses cookies to provide the newsletter service and to track the signups of the newsletter and to analyze the traffic statistically. Some of the cookies are essential for the functioning of the newsletter while others are optional. When you sign up for our newsletter, you will be asked unambiguously for a consent to use cookies. You can find more information on the cookie policy of MailChimp here: https://mailchimp.com/legal/cookies/.

Our website platform provider is Showit, Inc, based in the USA. According to information given by Showit, they don't track visitor traffic or collect any information on visitors on websites made on their platform unless in the case of using their built-in contact form on the site. We have chosen not to use the built-in contact form on our website. You can find more information on Showit & GDPR compliance for the EU based users here: https://learn.showit.co/en/articles/1808347-showit-gdpr.