Take a Hike, Pesky PEGs!

This week's Terrible Toxin, polyethylene glycols (or PEGs), are petroleum-based compounds used as thickeners, emulsifiers or surfactants.

PEGs can be found in everything from soaps, shampoos, creams and makeup products, and may be contaminated with carcinogens like 1,4-dioxane (think potential birth defects or infertility).

Thankfully, our Pearl Cleansing Cream is PEG-free and safe for every skin type.
