

STEPHENIE GIRARD

Stephenie Girard is a Professional Certified Coach through the International Coach Federation and has been coaching for almost a decade. She believes coaching is a change process that mobilizes strengths and realizes the potential of individuals. Her mission is to support people in finding even more meaning in what they do and be a catalyst for them to achieve their individual goals successfully while striving for sustainable results. She thrives in helping clients design their best lives.

In addition to her private coaching practice where her clients lead in organizations that range from leading professional service firms, financial institutions, and high growth tech companies, Stephenie is a Founding Guide for Chief, a private network designed for women seated at or around the table. Just prior she served as Lead Executive Coach at Ellevest where she was often speaking with CEO, Sallie Krawcheck, on career and life strategies. She also serves as a coach and facilitator for Arianna Huffington's Thrive Global and Harvard Business School.

Stephenie was on the coaching faculty for the HBS Online program, "Developing Yourself as a Leader".

From 2014 – 2017 Stephenie managed Research & Education at the Institute of Coaching (a Harvard Medical School and McLean Hospital affiliate) where she worked with her team to build a global research community by bringing together thought-leaders and authorities in the coaching field to accelerate research progress and disseminate coaching's best practices.

Stephenie has served as Special Advisor to Harvard Law School's Executive Education Programs. She was the first Program Manager appointed by Dr. Ashish Nanda to Harvard Law School Executive Education in 2007, when the school began offering Executive Education programs. After helping establish the school's flagship Leadership in Law Firms program, she worked to develop and implement the Harvard Law School Executive Education strategy.

For over a decade, Stephenie continued to work privately with her dear friend, and mentor, Dr. Ashish Nanda. In her role of Programs Director, she worked closely with the leadership of prominent professional service firms and has gained invaluable insight into the challenges and opportunities that exist in various firms from both cultural and leadership perspectives.

Stephenie enjoys dwelling in the memories of living in Ireland and Australia while also discovering all that is possible with her French husband and two school-aged sons, especially in the days ahead when they can continue to visit every city in France.