

SUCCESS...

We think we know what it is, but what if we're getting it all wrong?

Description of Tim Winders' debut novel Coach: A Story of Success Redefined

A STORY FOR TODAY

Tim Winders is a strategic coach, author, and host of the SeekGoCreate podcast. He has worked in the areas of leadership, business, and ministry for almost 40 years. Tim was the guy that looked like he had it all until the real estate markets crashed in 2008. After a slow and painful erosion of his companies, he and his wife were bankrupt and homeless living out of their Honda van. Fast forward to today. They are still "homeless" but this time by choice. They live and work in their motorhome while traveling North America. Inspired by motivational classics and his own experiences, Tim has written this inspirational story that will encourage you to embrace a life that is overflowing with love, faith, and peace.

BREAK FREE FROM THE ADDICTION TO MORE

Cooper Travis, the main character in Coach, had money, power, a large company, a beautiful wife, a big house, cars and so much more. Why would he attempt to end his life when he had more than most people would want? He was driven by the addiction to more that grips many of us today.

HOW DO WE DEFINE SUCCESS?

Follow Cooper on his journey of discovering the deeper meaning of success and breaking his insatiable desire for more. He is forced to question everything he believes as he is molded into the man he was created to be. Along the way, his guide is a unique and at times supernatural mentor that forces him to redefine success.

Excerpt from Coach: A Story of Success Redefined

"Well, I must say I appreciate your bluntness and honesty. If we are to make any progress, we must be clear as to our purpose," Asa replied. "Let's start with me. My purpose is to connect with people like you and help them on their journey in life. Many would call me a messenger or possibly a sage. Some would say apostle, but that may be a title that is far above my stature. The word counselor could also apply. I guess I would like to think that I coach people like you to help them bring out the greatness that already lives inside."

~ Asa, from Coach

Tim Winders
Speaker & Coach

Author of the inspirational novel,
Coach

