Palm Springs

Nothing says Palm Springs quite like a striking cantilever and a low-rise, linear form in steel, glass and concrete. Used as a backdrop for our shoot, this guardhouse, by Sean Lockyer, of LA architecture practice Studio AR&D, acts as gateway and checkpoint to the Desert Palisades residential development. Sitting on the slopes of a hillside on the fringes of Palm Springs, the Desert Palisades Guardhouse offers long views of the Californian city known for its unique constellation of modernist buildings, a heritage that is celebrated extensively during the annual Palm Springs Modernism Week. Ellie Stathaki
Palm Springs Modernism Week runs from 14-24 February 2019. For more information, visit studio-ard.com, modernismweek.com and Wallpaper.com ✪
