

Born and raised in Johnstown, Tiffany Hollis has deep roots in the community she serves. Her love of local history and preservation shapes her commitment to honoring Johnstown's past while thoughtfully planning for its future. She is known for fostering collaboration and building meaningful relationships both locally and regionally, supporting responsible economic development, and working to strengthen community pride and vitality.

Tiffany brings a collaborative, community-centered approach to local government. She emphasizes the importance of strategic communication, shared goals, and genuine relationship building to best serve her constituents.

Being a small business owner and entrepreneur, Tiffany is no stranger to hard work or challenges. Her real-world experience has given her a practical understanding of the needs of local businesses, families, and residents, and forms her focus on sustainable growth that benefits both long-term residents and future generations.

Tiffany is a co-founder of the Johnstown Chamber of Commerce, a member of the Johnstown Historical Society, and sits on the board for Preservation Ohio, reflecting her dedication to both economic progress and historic preservation.

As a wife, mother of four and "Tilly" to her grandchildren, Tiffany brings a deeply personal commitment to ensuring Johnstown remains a strong, welcoming community for her family and yours, while responsibly navigating growth and opportunity.
