BEDROOM & BATH
Evan Millard, millárd

Accented by a custom three-dimensional ceiling border, a light fabric wallcovering with an abstracted Greek column pattern is just one of many Grecian touches that interior designer Evan Millard incorporated into the light-filled bedroom suite. A trio of plaster figurative sculptures by Alan LeQuire, for example, create a focal point over the bed. And, referencing Greece's Mediterranean climate, a brass palm-shaped floor lamp adds a touch of whimsy. "There are lots of layers, but it's not stuffy or overwhelming," says Millard, pointing to the books and objets d'art displayed behind the curio cabinet's brass-framed glass doors. Indeed, pops of emerald, coral and a soft pale pink punctuate the neutral envelope, which is rendered in multiple shades of white and cream. A subtle nod to the jewel tones, a faceted mirror flanked by contemporary sconces elevates the en suite bathroom, which includes a Grecian urn filled with a lively mix of flowers. "This is a wonderful, warm and welcoming jewel box-like space," says Millard. "It's like a breath of fresh air." — Tate Gunnerson
