FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

1. WHICH KIND OF TEST IS THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES REQUIRING TO ENTER THE COUNTRY?

The ruling issued by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) states that a negative antigen or PCR test result must be shown to enter the United States. All travelers must show the document either in printed or electronic form, with the signature of the doctor or pharmaco-biological chemist, along with his/her professional license.

2. DOES THE REQUIREMENT FOR NEGATIVE TEST RESULTS APPLY TO CITIZENS OF THE UNITED STATES?

It applies for all airline passengers two years old or over who travel to the U.S., including U.S. citizens and legal permanent residents.

3. WITH THE NEW TRAVEL RESTRICTIONS IN THE PRESIDENTIAL DECREE, CAN FOREIGN CITIZENS NOW ENTER THE UNITED STATES WITH A NEGATIVE TEST RESULT?

Several presidential decrees have established restrictions on the entry of certain travelers to the U.S. in an effort to reduce the spreading of COVID-19. With specific exceptions, foreign citizens who have been in any of following countries during the last 14 days cannot enter the U.S.: Travelers Prohibited from Entry to the United States.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

4. WHAT KIND OF TEST MUST BE TAKEN BEFORE TRAVELING TO THE UNITED STATES AND HOW LONG BEFORE TRAVEL?

A viral test (PCR or antigen) must be taken in order to determine if a passenger is currently infected with COVID-19, since the test result must be shown to the airline before boarding a flight.

It must be done no more than 3 days before departure of the flight to the U.S.

5. WHAT HAPPENS IF THE TRAVELER RECENTLY RECOVERED FROM COVID-19?

The CDC do not recommend taking the test again for three months after a positive viral test result, as long as you do not have symptoms of COVID-19.

If you have had a positive viral test result in the last 3 months and have fulfilled the criteria for ending quarantine, you can travel with documentation showing the positive results of the viral test and a letter from your medical service supplier or health authority official stating that you have been cleared to travel. Both documents are called "recovery documentation".

6. WHO IS CHECKING THAT PASSENGERS HAVE A NEGATIVE TEST RESULT OR RECOVERY DOCUMENTATION BEFORE BOARDING THEIR FLIGHT TO THE U.S.?

The airline will check that passengers have a negative COVID-19 test result or recovery documentation before boarding.

7. WHAT HAPPENS IF TRAVELERS DO NOT TAKE A TEST AND WISH TO TRAVEL TO THE U.S.?

Passengers who travel by air to the U.S. must show a negative COVID-19 test result or recovery documentation. Airlines must check the negative result and recovery documentation of all passengers before boarding. If a passenger chooses not to show a test result or recovery documentation, the airline must deny boarding.

8. WHAT IS A VERIFIABLE TEST RESULT?

- This is a document (printed or electronic) issued by a clinical analysis laboratory in which the test result is shown.

The negative result of the PCR or antigen viral test taken must be shown to the airline before boarding. The document with the test result must include information identifying the person, the date the sample was given and the type of test done (PCR or antigen).

A negative result must show that the test was done within 3 days prior to the flight. A positive test result must show that the test was done within 3 months prior to the flight.

9. WHAT KIND OF TEST RESULT DOCUMENTATION MUST BE SHOWN?

- The CDC require airline passengers arriving in the U.S. to have a printed or electronic copy of the test for the airline to check before boarding, and so public health agents can check it upon arrival in the U.S.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

If they arrive in the U.S. via one or more connecting flights their test must have been done during the 3 days prior to the first flight in their itinerary, but only if the connecting flights were booked as a reservation for just one passenger with a final destination in the U.S. and each connection (stopover) lasts no more than 24 hours.

If the connecting flight to the U.S. was booked separately or if a connection in their itinerary lasts more than 24 hours a test must be taken within 3 days before their flight arrives in the U.S.

13. WHAT HAPPENS IF THE FLIGHT IS DELAYED AND THE 3 DAY PERIOD FOR TEST IS PASSED?

If their flight is delayed before departure, they must take the test again if the delay means the test was taken outside the required 3-day period before the flight.
