Quad 1 ends, Quad 2 starts

Quadmester 1 at TIA officially concluded with exams held on November 6 and 7. Students worked incredibly hard throughout the first quad, facing academic challenges and, for grade 12s, beginning the exciting but demanding university application process. Their dedication was evident every step of the way. Now, with Quadmester 2 underway, students are embracing new courses, fresh opportunities, and the chance to continue growing academically and personally. TIA looks forward to another successful quadmester ahead.

OSSLT

TIA administered the fall Ontario Secondary School Literacy Test on November 26, 27, and 28 in the school's computer lab. For many new students, this was their first time writing the assessment, making it an important milestone. Preparatory classes in the weeks prior helped them understand the test format, question styles, and effective strategies. TIA wishes all students the very best in achieving a successful result!

University acceptances

TIA proudly celebrates its first university acceptances of the year, earned by Seoeun Kim. She received early offers from Queen Mary University of London for Economics and International Relations, and from the University of Birmingham for Politics and Economics. We are thrilled by her success and proud of her outstanding achievement. Receiving these offers so early in the application season is truly impressive. We wish Seoeun the very best and hope she receives all her remaining offers, allowing her to choose the perfect path. Congratulations!

Christmas Prep Begins

TIA is joyfully preparing for the Christmas season, with the Student Council working throughout November to make this year's celebrations the best yet. The school aims to spread festive cheer by hosting fun events leading up to the final day before the well-deserved two-week holiday break. Student Council has decorated the school beautifully and added thoughtful touches, such as playing classic Christmas movies during lunch and filling the cafeteria with cheerful holiday music. The festive atmosphere is already lifting spirits across the school.
